

Anastasia Angelini

Camera Director

Anastasia Angelini is a filmmaker and photographer, with a background as a bass player, who has always been passionate about the world of cinema.

She was born in Cattolica (RN, Italy) in 1992, where she began her musical studies with private teachers very early on.

At the age of 16 he moved to Rome where she began studying photography in the best schools and after high school, she graduated in “Cinema and Visual arts” at the University of Rome.

She worked for several years in the Italian film industry in major national and international productions, with well-known directors (such as Ridley Scott for the film “House of Gucci”) in the camera department, obtaining technical and artistic skills.

She currently works and lives in Turin where she creates artistic video and photographic projects, with constant care and attention towards beauty and artistic responsibility.